LOCAL BREVITIES.

Christmas comin'.

The Ironton band is all right.

The dust has been annoying.

Lopez's Christmas ad next week.

Adolph, the jeweler, has a new ad.

Valley booster envelopes printed at this office.

November certainly was a most delightful month.

A few wild turkeys reported, but they are hard to get.

Our fall drouth terminated with a good rain Sunday.

A number of business houses have installed electric lights.

The leaves on the hills have been burning the past week.

The official statement of the Iron County Bank is printed this week.

The Marshall at Pilot Knob, it is said, has a strenuous job these days.

See the advertisement of the Baldwin Piano Company on the first page.

City Collector White wants you to pay your city taxes at once. Read his notice.

A steel foot bridge will be placed across Knob creek in the south end of Knob town.

A card from Lieut. Frank G. Delano informs us that he is now stationed at West Point.

Thirty cars or more of ties at the Arcadia station awaiting shipment. Some at Ironton, too.

An immense crowd at the picture show Saturday night, and a mighty fine show it was, too.

NOTICE—Special price on two or more coats, cloak and skirt, or two overcoats, at B. N. Brown's.

Work on the road in the Shut-In progresses. It is thought that the dam can be closed in another week.

An Arcadia Valley Cook Book would make a nice Christmas present as well as a lovely souvenir. On sale at The LOPEZ STORE Co.

Thanksgiving in the valley was a quiet and uneventful day. The shooting match in Arcadia attracted quiet a crowd most of the day.

Married—At the courthouse, Friday, November 29, 1912, Jesse Wamaock and Docia Cauley, both of Pilot Knob, Probate Judge O. W. Roper officiating.

Joe Cox, a former Bellevue boy, was in Ironton Saturday. Joe is now located at Wichita, Kansas, where he is employed by a large furniture establishment.

Man past 30 with horse and buggy to sell Stock Condition Powder in Iron County. Salary $70 per month. Address 9 Industrial Bldg., Indianapolis, Indiana.

Regular meeting of Iron Lodge, No. 107, L. O. E. P., Monday night, December 9th. Election of officers and other important business. H. ADOLPH, Sec'y.

From the Colton, California, Information: "Mrs. Phoebe Farmer, of Ironton, Missouri, has arrived for an extended visit with her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Farmer."

Mr. A. A. Jacobs, of Arcadia, has our thanks for a copy of the Saturday Press, published at Saskatoon, Canada. It is a "building and development edition" and a handsome publication.

There will be a meeting of the A. V. Business Men's League at the courthouse Friday evening, 7:30 o'clock. A secretary is to be elected, and a full attendance of the members is desired.

Dr. Houston has the foundation finished for his new home, on West Wayne street. When completed he will have one of the tastiest and up-to-date residences in the valley. He expects to have the work all done by early spring.

George J. Baldwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Baldwin, formerly of Ironton, but now living in Laurel, Mississippi, was last Wednesday united in marriage to a young lady living in that town. Valley acquaintances extend congratulations.

Mr. O. L. Yount has purchased the Summers' butcher shop in Ironton and is now in charge of the place. Les says he proposes to run a clean, up-to-date shop and he respectfully asks a fair share of the patronage. He promises to do his best to please everybody and guarantees satisfaction in every instance. He will at all times keep a full supply of fresh and salted meats and the accessories. Give him a call.

Mrs. A. F. Bond and Dr. Bond left Monday for Kansas City for a stay of a month or more. On their return the Dr. will probably locate at Peasus or Poplar Bluff for the practice of his profession.

Special magazine bargains until December 20th for Delinquent, Everybody's and Woman's Home Companion. Also, agents for all periodical, single or in Clubs.

BAPTIST LADIES.

Mr. J. H. Sutton an old resident of the Glover neighborhood, suffered a stroke of paralysis the latter part of September. He has been in Ironton for treatment the past month and hopes to be able to return home in a couple of weeks.

Strayed—From the pasture on Shepherd Mountain in April last, a two-year-old dark red steer, natural muley, no marks. Liberal reward will be paid for information leading to the recovery of the animal. Address F. O. Coddling, Ironton, Mo.

The St. Louis Blast Furnace in South St. Louis was sold under deed of trust Tuesday of last week. The property was bid in for $75,000 by the bondholders. A resumption of work at the furnace would probably mean the opening of the mines at Pilot Knob.

Recorder Hawkins issued the following marriage licenses the past week:

Samuel Clay Bates and Ruth M. Toney, of Piedmont.

J. W. Spitzmiller and Rosa E. Crooker.

Jesse Wamaock and Docia Cauley.

We hear that one of Iron county's defeated candidates, while on the journey up Salt River, stopped on his way, during the night, to help himself to some apples out of a neighbor's apple bin. About the time the sack was filled a gun was fired. The Salt River traveler grabbed his sack and ran. Apples were strewn along the way for a mile or more.

A card from our young friend, Mr. Frank B. Nall, of St. Louis, apprises us that he has severed his connection with the Mercantile Trust Co., where he has been employed for a number of years, and is now engaged in the practice of the law, with offices in the Central National Bank Building. Frank is a most worthy young man, and we wish him every success in his profession.

The following appeared in Sunday's St. Louis Republic, telegraphed from Washington, D. C.: "The names most persistently put forward in relation to the United States marshals at Kansas City and St. Louis number three for each position. For the Eastern District, that centering at St. Louis, the three known aspirants are: William R. Taft of Steelville, Joseph A. Reayburn of Ironton, Samuel Gardner, Chief of Police at Poplar Bluff."

Deeds filed in the recorder's office last week disclose the fact that Mr. Cabell Gray, of St. Louis, is now the owner of "The Maples" property in Russellville, that has been used by the Arcadia Country Club as a Club house the past summer. The price was said to be $20,000. Two deeds of trust, on the property, aggregating $13,000, in favor of the Jones' estate, were also filed for record. Mr. Gray is an attorney in St. Louis and says the property may be leased to the Club again next summer.

There are already ten Democrats applicants for postmastership at Fredericktown who are circulating petitions. Among them is B. B. Cahoon, Jr. It has been hinted that B. B. Cahoon, Sr., left the Republican party after he failed to get this appointment from President Taft. Should young Cahoon fail again to land the job, we wonder what the old man will do next.—Pilot Journal.

The above item originated in the "fertile" imagination of a Republican editor. Mr. Cahoon IS NOT a candidate, neither does he expect to be, for the Fredericktown postoffice; neither has he ever intimated to anyone that he would be a candidate.—Fredericktown Democrat-News.

Says the Doe Run correspondent of the Farmington News: "People continue to leave Doe Run as rapidly as they find employment at other places. While most of our people believe that the town has a future that will almost if not fully equal the past in prosperity, few of them are able to wait here on uncertainties and not many would want to wait here in idleness many months even if it was definitely known that the works would start again within even a year. As many of our people own property here, it is presumed that they will return at any time the works should start up again."

To Mr. S. W. Andrews the REGISTER household is indebted for a couple of very fine mallard ducks presented Thanksgiving morning. They were large and fat and delicious. Mr. Andrews killed them in Dunklin county.

P. S.—Since the foregoing was put in type Conductor Jim Webb, of St. Louis, called. He insists that the ducks presented us were "decoys" and says Sam Andrews never shot a Mallard in his life. However, Bert Langdon, who was down in Dunklin at the time, says that while he never saw Sam kill a duck, yet they were so very, very plentiful that he thinks possibly he might have done so. Anyway, we are going to give our old friend the benefit of the doubt, and say he shot the ducks.

Harry Nichols, while working as night agent at the middlebrook station last Thursday night, broke into a package in the depot and stole therefrom a quart of whiskey. Nichols filled up on the liquor and next day was sent to Des Arc to work as operator. About this time the agent at Middlebrook found the whiskey had been stolen and had Squire W. C. Johnson issue a warrant for Nichols. The warrant was sent to Constable Reed at Des Arc who arrested Nichols and locked him in a room preparatory to taking him to Middlebrook. When the officer went away to change his clothes, however, Nichols got out of the room and fled. He was later located at Chas. Hill. Saturday he was taken before Squire Johnson at Middlebrook who sentenced him to thirty days in jail. Nichols was brought here the same day and will spend the holidays as the guest of our genial sheriff.

Samuel Clay Bates and Ruth M. Toney, both of Piedmont, were united in marriage by Rev. L. F. Aspley at his home in Arcadia, Saturday morning, November 30, 1912. Both parties were of legal age, but it is said that the father of the bride, Dr. Geo. W. Toney, a well known physician of Piedmont, bitterly opposed the match and the young folk had to run away in order to get married. To get away from Piedmont without being detected, the bride and her kinsman, David Johnson, walked from Piedmont to Gads Hill, a distance of five miles; there early Saturday morning they met the bridegroom, and the trio came on to Ironton. The irate father telephoned up and down the road and sent word should the couple appear here not to grant a license until he arrived. But both were of age and license could not be refused. After the wedding the happy couple boarded the noon train for home, and are doubtless now, in full enjoyment of the parental forgiveness and blessing. We hope so, anyway.

The Thanksgiving Entertainment at the Arcadia College last Thursday evening was a treat to those so fortunate as to be present. I was debarred that pleasure, unfortunately for myself, being absent from the Valley. There was a large attendance, I am told, and for two hours the auditors had cause for self-congratulation. Following is the programme, and it speaks for itself:

Herold The Misses Hildegard Sellmeyer, Celeste Grimm, Fern Matthews and Margaret Teahan.

THANKSGIVING—Recitation and Action Song—Minims.

PIANO QUARTETTE—Dance Neapolitan Sidney Smith, The Misses Bessie Flanagan, Margaret Lohman, Mary Yates and Elizabeth Lohman.

RECITATION—"My Lady's Leap" Miss Juliet Weinert.

OVERTURE—"Semiramis"—Rossini The Misses Kathleen Malugen, Margaret Mason, Carolyn McFadden, Frances Mason, Elizabeth Schulte and Agatha Kohn.

VOCAL DUET—"Awake"—Pelissier The St. Cecilia's Choral Club.

The friends of Herman A. Kretschmar are making a determined effort to secure his release from the Missouri penitentiary, where he is serving an eighteen year sentence for the killing of Clarence N. Jones in St. Louis about four years ago. Both men were well known in the valley. Among those who have appealed to Governor Hadley in Kretschmar's behalf is James Whitcomb Riley, the Indiana poet of world-wide fame. Riley and Kretschmar have been intimate friends for a quarter of a century. Mr. Riley recently addressed the following letter to Governor Hadley:

My Dear Governor—Word has just reached me that everywhere the friends of Herman Kretschmar are making an earnest and loving effort to secure his pardon by his release from the Missouri State Penitentiary. As one who knew him well, and who admired him greatly, who was ever won to him by his endearing personality and who is still proud to call him friend, I wish to add my plea to those already presented.

Were I able physically, I should consider it a privilege to journey to Jefferson City that I might make my supplication in person. But this is denied me and I ask you to read into this letter the warmth and urgency of the spoken word.

That my friend has, or ever had, any guilt in his soul is as unthinkable to me as that vice and virtue are one and inseparable. If ever an honest, straightforward, kindly eye sparkled in the heart of a true man, it sparkled in the head of Herman Kretschmar.

If he were to be made a warning to others, has not the lesson been driven fully home?

And so, my dear Governor, I ask that the poor fragments of my friend's unhappy life be given into his own keeping, believing in all sincerity that he will weld them into a golden whole, to his own peace and to the benediction of Him who grants them.

With great respect, believe me, faithfully yours, JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY.

Dinger—Brandt.

Married—At the home of the bride at Gordonville, Mo., Thursday, November 28, 1912, at 1:00 o'clock P. M., Mr. Jacob Dinger, of Ironton, and Miss Ella Brandt, daughter of Rev. C. C. E. Brandt, the father of the bride officiating.

The bride was beautifully attired in white embroidered net over white silk, wore wreath and veil. The groom was attired in the customary black.

Miss Alleda Johnson, niece of the groom, was Maid of Honor, daintily dressed in light blue nuns veiling trimmed in silk fringe and lace. The groomsmen were Mr. Roy Calvert, nephew of the groom. The sister of the bride, Mrs. Rev. H. Frey, played the Wedding March as the bride and groom passed through the long hall into the parlor which was handsomely decorated with ferns and flowers, where a song was sung fitting the occasion. Then the ceremony was performed.

After the ceremony the relatives and few intimate friends present passed into the dining-room where the wedding dinner was served. The table was decorated with ferns. The table d'haute to the occasion, as the table fairly groaned with good things to eat, which will long be remembered by those present.

After the dinner all returned to the parlor where the balance of the evening was spent with music and singing. The bride and groom received many congratulations from relatives and friends, also many handsome and valuable presents.

After the first of the year Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Dinger will be at home in Ironton.

B. N. Brown has now the most complete line of shoes ever in his store.—Adv.

Fuller Swift Again.

(From St. Louis Post-Dispatch.) IRONTON, Mo., Nov. 27.—The whole town of Ironton is following with interest developments in the case of Barbara Gladys Arnold, St. Louis girl of mystery, who was a resident of this town a year and a half ago, when exciting incidents occurred in which the girl's aunt, Mrs. Julia Thornton, had a leading part. Barbara herself had no ostensible connection other than as an observer with the sensational incidents, which were the talk of Ironton and Arcadia, and the surrounding country-side.

Discussion of these occurrences has been renewed here by the girl's confession that she set fire to the Berlin Hotel, in St. Louis, the night of November 1, causing three persons to be burned to death, and by her recent repudiation of that confession.

The girl's mother and a brother were also living at Mrs. Thornton's home at the time of the revelations which stirred the community.

Mrs. Thornton is a compositor, having learned the printer's trade when she helped her husband getting out a Socialist paper in a town near Ironton.

He died several years ago, and at the time that Barbara and her mother lived with her, Mrs. Thornton was employed in the office of the Ironton Enterprise. The editor of the Enterprise was the Rev. Fuller Swift, who was also pastor of the Baptist Church. A young woman acted as his secretary.

The affair which culminated when a hostile faction stormed the church with rotten eggs, began when the pastor-editor discharged Barbara's aunt from the Enterprise. Mrs. Thornton was bitterly licensed at being dismissed and told members of the church, to which she herself belonged, stories concerning Swift and his secretary.

These stories were circulated so widely that finally the deacons and trustees of the church decided on an investigation. A committee among the members of the committee were Adrain Steele, the Postmaster, and Deacon S. P. Ringo, prominent merchant of Ironton.

Mrs. Thornton was summoned to appear before the committee and present evidence to substantiate the stories she had been telling about the married pastor and editor, and his secretary, a young woman of a family well thought of in the neighborhood. Deacon Ringo's house was named as the place where the trial would be held and Mrs. Thornton was told to appear there. Especially was she invited to produce to the committee, notes which she said had passed between the pastor-editor and the secretary, and which she had said she had in her possession.

Instead of reporting at Deacon Ringo's Mrs. Thornton sent word to the committee that she was conducting an independent inquiry at her own home and that if the committee wished to take part in it, they might come to her house.

Later Mrs. Thornton issued a statement in which she declared that her real reason for not appearing before the committee was that she did not believe it intended to act in good faith and she did not trust its membership. She said, however, that she had some confidence in Deacon Ringo and that she would show him the letters and notes she had, but would not let him have them to be submitted to the Trial Committee.

"I went over the letters," Deacon Ringo said, "and I was firmly convinced that they were not genuine. The young woman who was sought to be implicated was an exceptionally fine young woman, and neither I nor other members of the committee could find a shred of evidence against her. We accordingly reported back to the church exonerating both her and the Rev. Fuller Swift."

Mrs. Thornton, however, was not satisfied with the work of the committee, and circulars dealing with the case and signed with her name, were scattered broadcast over Ironton and the neighboring town of Arcadia one night. These circulars contained what purported to be excerpts of notes which Mrs. Thornton said had passed between Swift and his secretary. It was explained in the circulars that the excerpts were mild in comparison to the other portions of the notes.

About the same time the Rev. Fuller Swift began to receive vile anonymous letters and the Baptist Church at night was regularly placarded with what were called calendars of the doings of "Fuller."

These calendars were profusely illustrated with drawings of a scantily clad young woman.

The town was soon in ferment. The pastor had enemies in the church, Deacon Ringo says, and some of these were active against him. One evening there was a prayer meeting at the church. It was a warm night in August and all the windows were raised. The Rev. Fuller Swift was in the pulpit. Eggs were hurled through the church windows from the outside.

"That incident alone might have caused some lynching around here," said Deacon Ringo Tuesday. "I rather believe I would be in favor of tarring a fellow that would do a thing like that. None of the eggs hit the pastor but they did strike members of the congregation. One of the best women in the church received one of those rotten eggs full in the forehead."

"Barbara Gladys Arnold never appeared in connection with any of these events but a relative's name was mentioned to me in connection with the egg throwing. I did not know the girl well and she was not at all conspicuous the time she was here. Once afterwards she visited a family here that has a good standing."

"The girl seemed very quiet. I don't remember ever having talked to her. If I met her on the street I would speak to her, but that was all."

"The girl and her mother and brother left here soon after the commotion in the church, and it was currently reported that they had gone to St. Louis. We didn't hear much more about them until we read in the newspapers of Barbara burning the Berlin Hotel."

"Fuller Swift continued as pastor of the church until the spring of this year, when he resigned to take employment with Col. J. I. Torrey, a fruit man. Before he left Ironton I had tried to get the grand jury to investigate the trouble here, but for some reason the county authorities didn't seem to want to take it up."

"Many persons came to me and said, 'I'm willing to tell the grand jury who threw those eggs.' And though their identity seemed that certain the prosecuting officials would not act. Fuller Swift told me that the woman who was writing him the vile anonymous letters frankly admitted her identity to him."

"However, things have calmed down now, and if it had not been for the burning of this hotel, I don't think our troubles would have been publicly revived."

Mr. Allen, the tomb stone man, was down last week and put up several fine stones. He is getting quite a lot of orders here.

Chas. L. Stevenson and W. J. Fitz returned from Lilbourn Saturday. Mr. Stevenson will go in business there with W. J. Fitz, so there will be a firm of Stevenson & Fitz at Lilbourn. They will start in business January 1st. W. J. Fitz has bought a home in Lilbourn.

Mrs. Williams requests that all donations for the Children's Home be left at R. H. Stevenson's store.

W. D. Slitz was called to Marquand Saturday to attend the funeral of his step-father, Mr. Watts, who died Friday.

Dr. Fred Farr is reported to be improving at the hospital in St. Louis, but is not out of danger yet.

An operator by the name of Nichols last Thursday night at Middlebrook broke into an express package and filled himself with whiskey. He was an extra man and was ordered to Des Arc Friday, but a warrant met him here and he was taken to Ironton and given thirty days in jail for stealing whiskey. This act lets him out of the service of the Iron Mountain railroad.

We very much enjoyed an interesting entertainment at our public school last Friday evening. It would require too much space to mention every feature of the programme. Every one did well his part. "Story of the Pilgrims," by the boys and girls was very fine. They were dressed to represent all nations. Instrumental music by Ethel Myers was well rendered. She will make a fine musician if she continues with her music.

"The Cat's Soliloquy," by Elinore Bretingham was simply fine. Prof. McKee is certainly a good teacher and disciplinarian.

I was in Ironton Saturday. That place certainly has improved wonderfully in the past twelve months. New walks and electric lights. It looked beautiful from the train, No. 9, which passes about nine o'clock.

I was also at Bismarck. Lucy & Lucy do quite a business. They carry, at least, $20,000 worth of goods. I sell them the Cox & Gordon meat and lard—the oldest and best house in St. Louis.

Boldwin Bros. are paying 8 cents for hub logs, 11 inches in diameter. They have an order for 75,000 set of big hubs. ISAAC.

To City Taxpayers.

I desire to call the attention of the taxpayers of the City of Ironton to the fact that the City Tax Book for the current year is now in my hands and I am ready and willing to issue receipts to all who are ready to pay. You will please note the fact that the time is fast approaching when city taxes become delinquent and if you do not pay before that time there will be costs and penalty added. I can show no favors. Everybody must pay or suffer the consequence. So, everybody, please step forward and pay your city taxes without further notice.

Respectfully,
R. T. WHITE, City Collector.

Thanksgiving out here was remarkably quiet; a few spent the day hunting, others worked, while many others stayed at home, and enjoyed themselves in various ways. All the schools were closed, and the teachers, of course, very much enjoyed a day's outing.

Houston McColl, who is teaching in Wayne County, spent Thanksgiving with home folk.

Mrs. E. M. Logan spent a few days last week with Mrs. Ann Logan.

Mr. Keesling went to Iron Mountain Saturday after a new piano which he had bought.

John Breitenstein, our barber, appears to have a good business the past few months.

Mr. Hughes, who has been in North Carolina the past six or seven months has returned home. It is said that he will remain at home until April.
